1982

The New Mutants, a team of adolescent super powered heroes, were brought together by Professor X, founder of the X-Men. Professor X's goals were to educate and assist the New Mutants in learning how to control their powers and use them to defend mankind from the threat of evil mutants. Now led by the mysterious cyborg, Cable, the New Mutants are learning how to cope in a world that has become even more vicious and intolerant of mutants.

Did You Know: The punk like hair strands on Warlock's head are really fiber optic "organs" composed of living circuitry.

X-Factor is a super heroic team whose stated purpose is to locate new mutants and then teach them how to control their powers. Their task has become increasingly difficult because of the rampant anti-mutant hysteria sweeping the United States. But this hysteria has made X-Factor even more determined to help their fellow mutants. Ultimately, they hope mankind and mutantkind will be able to live together in peace.

Did You Know. The founding members of X-Factor are also the original members of the X-Men.

Although composed of the web-slinger's greatest enemies, the Six have not yet been able to accomplish their grisly goal. Their suspicion and mistrust of each other, and each member's overwhelming desire to be the one to deliver the final blow to Spidey, have at critical moments turned certain victory into total defeat.

The Hellfire Club is comprised of ultra-rich and powerful individuals whose ruling Inner Circle is engaged in a conspiracy to control the world through an interlocking combination of economic power and ruthless political domination. The Inner Circle was led by Sebastian Shaw but Magneto, the mutant master of magnetism, deposed him and now directs the Club's activities. Longtime foes of the X-Men, the Hellfire Club came close to destroying the mutant super hero team by turning the X-Man Phoenix into their pawn. This attempt though, backfired disastrously. Yet this setback has not stopped the Hellfire Club from pursuing its plans to eliminate the X-Men.

First Appearance: X-MEN #120, April 1979

Alpha Flight is Canada's greatest team of super heroes and most controversial. Although created by its government to defend the nation, the group has repeatedly had to fight its creators just to remain in existence. Those battles seem to be over for now, allowing Alpha Flight to concentrate on what it does best: protecting Canada from all those who would threaten her, whether they be extra-dimensional aliens, supernatural monsters or power-hungry super villains.

Did You Know: Wolverine was selected to be one of the first members of Alpha Flight, but left to join the X-Men instead.
